CNV: A Maritime Cooperation Center

Maritime Voluntary Cooperation (or Coopération Navale Volontaire - CNV in French) is a voluntary approach between French public authorities and private actors in the maritime world, promoting the sharing of information regarding maritime safety and security.

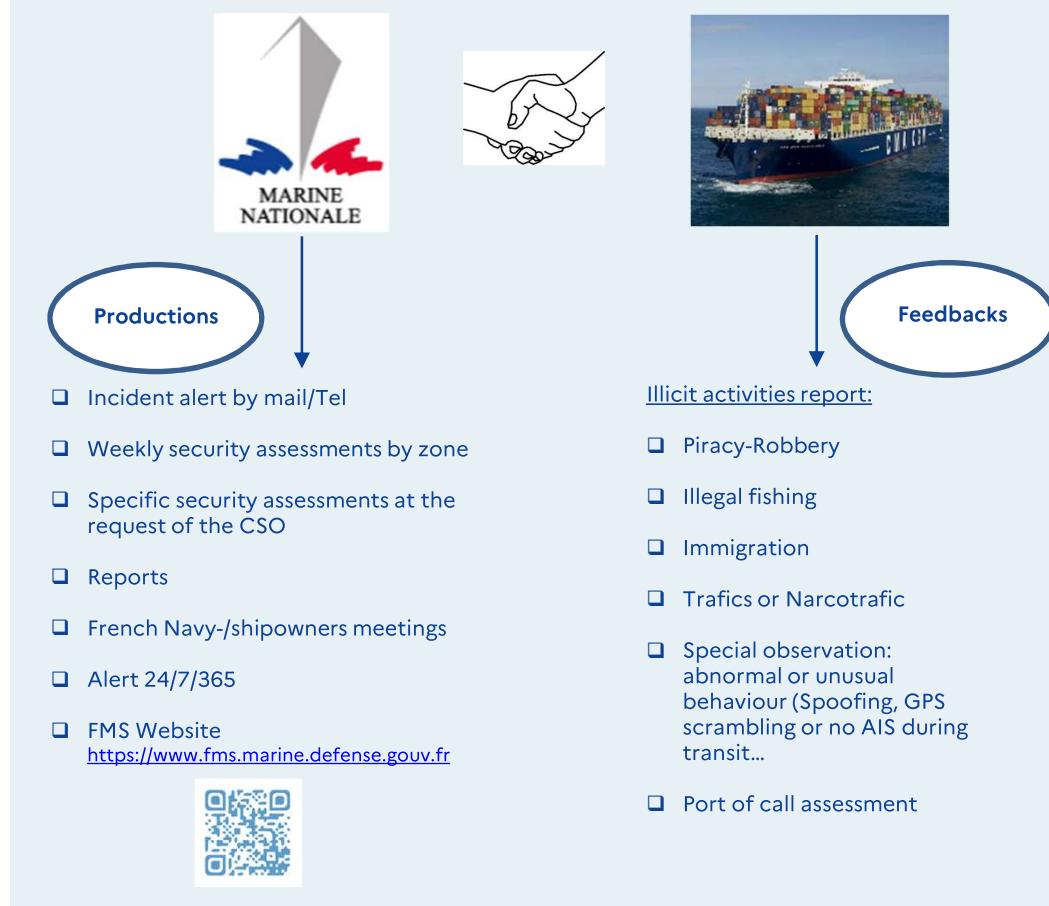

Subscribers establish relationships that feed into our network to exchange information as well as professional and credible analyses, aimed at strengthening the security of maritime areas through a better knowledge of the maritime domain.

All types of maritime activities can be included in the cooperation. Ship-owners are the main partners (passenger transport, bulk or container transport, fishing, maritime operations and services, etc.), regardless of the sector of activity or flag. They make their contributions on a voluntary basis and benefit in return from the services of the MICA Center. This cooperation is also open to offshore or port platform operations as well as underwater operations companies.

Membership of the cooperation is free of charge. The exchange of information is conducted without financial compensation. To become a member of the cooperation, private actors can apply directly to the MICA Center. They can also do so via the commander of the French maritime zone concerned (CZM) or, abroad, via the French diplomatic representation.

Instruction interministérielle relative à la coopération navale volontaire N° 165/SGDSN/PSE/PSN du 29 avril 2019

The CNV is based on a voluntary maritime cooperation protocol signed between the French Navy and shipowners (french or foreign) or private companies.
